

How God Uses Our Weaknesses and Limitations as Homeschool Moms

By Zan Tyler

Do you ever have those moments of panic when you wonder if you are giving your children everything they need to succeed in life? Or in those quiet moments of thought and reflection, do you worry that you are inadequate for all that homeschooling requires of you? Do you ever wake up in the middle of the night plagued by the long list of important things that still need to be done—and know there will never be enough time in the day to accomplish them? If you, like I, have experienced these feelings and fears in your homeschooling journey, then come to this workshop and be encouraged.

1. Unleash God's power in your life: _____ about your _____.

Because of Christ, I have:

- a) accepted my weaknesses
- b) made peace with my weaknesses
- c) am ashamed of my weaknesses
- d) realized I should quit homeschooling because of my weaknesses
- e) none of the above

God has chosen an AMAZING place to dwell with us:

3. Who are two women in Scripture that are weak, weary, limited, and brokenhearted? How did God treat them?

4. Learn to unwrap the unique blessings found in our weaknesses and limitations.

Here are three people who did just that:
